Letter from the South.

Punta Gorda, Florida,
Jan. 15, 1916.

Editor Journal: On December 27, 1915, we turned our faces southward once more, and after a night's journey in a Pullman berth, we landed in Nashville, Tenn., and were met at the train by our friend, J. T. Lindsay, superintendent of the Pintsch Co., which furnishes gases for railroad cars. We spent one week most delightfully, being entertained in a true Southern free-hearted way. There was considerable rain while we were there, and only cold enough to freeze on one night. The Cumberland river was out of its banks and overflowed the low lands, families having to be moved out of their houses.

The coal smoke hangs over the city like a cloud, and it seems to grime everything outdoors. When the day is clear and sunny, one may get a fine view over the city from the top of the high point once occupied by Fort Negley. Another point across the valley was once occupied as a fort by the Confederates during the rebellion. The State Capitol is situated on another high point and is a fine old building of former days. Besides the tomb of James K. Polk and wife, the grounds contain an equestrian statue of Andrew Jackson, also a statue of Sam Davis, a hero of the Confederates, who gave his life for the cause.

Southern enterprise does not always move rapidly, for a car line to the Hermitage, Jackson's old home, is not yet completed. There are motor cars by dozens and the speed limit seems to be just as fast as you can go.

One of the interesting things to see is one of the bridges for foot passengers and traffic over the Cumberland river. This is ten blocks long and high enough to allow steamboats to pass under. At the end, where it comes down to the roadway, is an immense public dumping ground, where we saw a curious thing to us, at least. Two of the men who were picking over things in search of iron, rags, &c.—a regular business—had each built himself a little shack right on the spot, out of junk, tin sheeting, old mending, &c. Really, our swine are better housed and less liable to disease than those in such unspeakable looking places.

Nashville is a business city, which could be much greater, if not kept back by enormous taxes and outrageous graft.

Tennessee needs a cleaning-up officially, worse than any other state we ever heard of. If a man has a business room, though not in use, he is compelled to pay a privilege license just the same. And no redress, absolutely none. Mr. Lindsay received a letter from the city officials while we were there notifying him that the Pintsch Gas Compressing Co. would have to pay three hundred dollars a year for the privilege of running the business in Nashville. They have always paid the required taxes, too. He referred the matter to the head of the company, but said it would have to be paid.

Our next stop was at Atlanta, Ga., where we paid a short visit to old school friends of Mr. Wilson. We arrived at Jacksonville after a night's ride on the Dixie Flyer, and were there only long enough to catch the train to Lakeland, where we stopped over night. We landed in Punta Gorda the next day at noon. The same rooms were ready for us that we occupied when here before and by evening we were nicely settled.

A number of those we knew two years ago are here again, but on inquiring we learned that there are some who will never return.

One thing more and I am through for this time. About one and a half miles from town, at a turn of the road, is a painted sign saying, "Speed limit, seventy miles an hour." Really! And some wag has added a cipher to the seventy, making it read seven hundred.

Hoping that all our friends are well and keeping warm these days, I am

Yours Sincerely,
MRS. LORINDA A. WILSON.

"Say, I see that the famous Fogazzaro is dead."

"Who was he?"

"Fogazzaro? Why, he was one of the foremost novelists and poets of Italy."

"Never heard of him."

"Neither did I. Say, it's rather a large world after all, isn't it?"

Chronic and Obsolete Diseases.

If you are suffering from some obscure chronic disease, from which you have been unable to get relief, is it not to your advantage to consult a skillful specialist?

Dr. Kutchin's system of treatment differs from many others. He only employs pure herbal remedies and proceeds on principles which have been thoroughly tested in the great Hospitals of Europe and America.

Many diseases are benefited by his methods. In chronic and obsolete diseases he has achieved his most remarkable triumphs.

There are many cases in this country that were given up to die, who have been saved by his skill.

Why not go and see him and be examined? Dr. Kutchin's next visit to Greenville, will be on Thursday, Feb. 3, at the Hotel James. Call in the forenoon.

Gettysburg.

We are here in midwinter with fine spring-like weather, cheered with the melody of singing birds to transform our cruder natures and make us more God-like. If this world lacks sweetness, put more sugar in it. It will be much as you make it for others and yourself.

The revival meeting in our M. E. church, after a continuance of three weeks, closed last night with a powerful sermon on the subject of "Weighed in the Balance and Found Wanting," to an overcrowded house, during which good attention was given, inspiring good impressions, which, of necessity, will be lasting and will be as bread cast upon the waters to appear many days hence. While no accessions were gained for the church, the membership has been greatly revived and unified for greater work in the vineyard of the Lord.

In another week our Presbyterian church will begin revival services with the help of an evangelist; when it will be found whether the latter church has greater converting power than the former. Without doubt conversion to Godliness is as badly needed here as any other place, but why more sinners do not fall victims to righteousness is hard to explain, except on the theory that persons find sinning more conformable to their natures than doing right. Serving the devil has more in it for them than serving God.

Our M. E. Sunday school had an attendance yesterday of 110.

Our citizen, G. W. Reek, dealer in farm implements, vehicles, &c., made an assignment last Friday to L. E. Harvey for the benefit of his creditors, estimating his estate at $3600. Liabilities not given.

W. H. Horner has begun the erection of a dwelling on his lots across the Rhine, which will have the modern conveniences and will have some claim for a pretentious structure. Sure, Mr. Horner has as much claim for a fine dwelling as the other fellow and as much obligation to improve our city as any one else. Let the work go on. Who will be the next?

C. J. Miller made a business trip to Bradford today.

Our gripe victims are all on the mend.

To Cure Children's Colds.

Keep child dry, clothe comfortably, avoid exposure and give Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. It is pleasant, soothing, antiseptic, raises phlegm and reduces inflammation. The first dose gives relief, continued treatment with proper care will avoid serious illness or a long cold. Don't delay treatment. Don't let your child suffer. Get a bottle today. Insist on Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. 25c at druggists. —Adv

Regulations for the Public Health Nurse of Greenville.

1. The nurse is to be called either through the physician or directly at her office or address. She responds to every new call, but the nursing of patients is continued only under the direction of a physician. She does not prescribe treatment or drugs and gives them only under the doctor's directions.

2. The nurse's hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., 8 hours. She may be found in her office daily between the hours of 8 to 9 and 1 to 2. Calls left before 3:30 p.m. will be answered the same day.

3. The Greenville Public Health Nurse is Miss Jessie Chapman, who rooms with Mrs. James M. Mellinger, 112 Harrison avenue. Phone 1031 Blue.

4. On Sundays and holidays patients will be visited when special or immediate attention is required. After hours the nurse will make visits only at the request of a physician when he is in attendance or in case of emergency.

5. The nurse is not allowed to attend certain contagious diseases, but will give instructions in nursing and every possible assistance to families in which such cases occur.

6. The nurse is not allowed to act as midwife where medical attendance is available, nor under ordinary circumstances is she expected to attend normal deliveries, but will answer calls at any time before and after confinement.

7. The nurse does not accept personal presents or money from patients or friends of patients. Fees charged go into the funds of the association which employs the nurse. While the services of a nurse are for all, those who can afford to engage a private nurse are not expected to utilize her services except in an emergency. When this becomes necessary a private nurse's fee should be given to the association employing the nurse.

The fees in other cities are half a dollar for each nursing visit, although larger sums are sometimes paid.

Wherever material relief is needed the nurse will report such cases to the proper agency. The self respect and independence of the patients should be regarded as vital. Although a number of patients may not be able to pay for the service, those who can will be expected to do so in proportion to their means.

In conclusion, we desire to emphasize that the public health nurse whether employed by a city, county, or voluntary organization is not a charity agent. Her work is that of a nurse and a teacher. Further, that while a large part of her work will be gratuitous service in the homes of those who can not afford to pay, at the same time she will be at the paid service of self-supporting families. A family whose bread-winner earns from fifteen to thirty dollars a week may not be able to hire a trained nurse to give her whole time to a sick or injured member at home. At the same time such a family is not an object of charity. It can afford and should be willing to pay a fee for a daily visit from the health nurse.

This movement can be made permanent and successful by the co-operation of our fellow citizens.

GEO. A. KATZENBERGER,
Secretary.

For Rheumatism.

As soon as an attack of Rheumatism begins apply Sloan's Liniment. Don't waste time and suffer unnecessary agony. A few drops of Sloan's Liniment on the affected parts is all you need. The pain goes at once.

A grateful sufferer writes:—"I was suffering for three weeks with Chronic Rheumatism and Stiff Neck, although I tried many medicines, they failed, and I was under the care of a doctor. Fortunately I heard of Sloan's Liniment and after using it three or four days am up and well. I am employed at the biggest department store in S. F. where they employ from six to eight hundred hands, and they surely will hear all about Sloan's Liniment."
